<http://www.upress.umn.edu/tests/mmpi2.html> From the horse's mouth – this site is run by the University of Minnesota, proponents of the FBS. Lots of detail here. Another link specifically dealing with an FBS study is here: http://www.upress.umn.edu/tests/mmpi2\_fbs.html

<http://www3.interscience.wiley.com/cgi-bin/abstract/101519844/ABSTRACT> From the Journal of Clinical Psychology. Abstract only, but you can purchase / download the full text.

<http://blogs.wsj.com/law/2008/03/05/test-for-fingering-malingers-comes-under-fire/> Wall Street Journal article highlighting recent criticisms of the test. Comments are also posted.

<http://richmond.injuryboard.com/head-and-brain-injuries/fake-bad-scale-weapon-of-defense-neuropsychologists.aspx?googleid=232632> Pro-claimant interest group 'Injury Board' recently posted an article by Michael Phelan, a specialist PI attorney, in which, not surprisingly perhaps, he mounted a scathing attack on the FBS.

<http://forensicpsychologist.blogspot.com/2008/03/new-mmpi-scale-invalid-as-forensic-lie.html> Forensic Psychology blog commenting on the recent criticisms of the FBS. Some useful links too.
